Republican Party of Wisconsin achieves major milestone in voter contact efforts

[Madison, WI] — Today, the Republican Party of Wisconsin was joined by Governor Scott Walker in Chippewa Falls to make the one millionth phone call by the party this cycle. After the party's ground-game infrastructure delivered big wins statewide for President Trump and Senator Johnson during the 2016 cycle, today's landmark phone call shows that the party is redoubling its efforts to get our conservative message to voters ahead of the November election. Following the call, the Republican Party of Wisconsin released the following statement from Chairman Brad Courtney:

"Our Wisconsin Republican volunteers are some of the hardest working in the country. Thanks to their countless hours spent knocking on their neighbor's doors, marching at parades – and now, making over one million phone calls – the Republican Party of Wisconsin is building on its proven ground game model ahead of the 2018 election cycle. Governor Walker issued a wake-up call to Republican voters, and we're answering it."
