Senator Mark Miller released the following statement on Senate Republicans' failure to do their jobs

Madison – “It is clear that Senate Republicans are not interested in working very often. When they have been interested in working, they have refused to take up commonsense bills supported by the majority of Wisconsinites, but today is the most appalling example.

“Every Wisconsinite should have the opportunity to go to school, a place of worship, or any other public space in their community knowing that it is a safe space free from the threat of deadly weapons and dangerous individuals. The cost of inaction is too high. We must put politics and partisanship aside and listen to the will of the people.

“According to a Marquette Law Poll 80 percent of Wisconsinites, including the vast majority of gun owners, support strengthening background checks and enacting Extreme Risk Protection legislation. It is time for the majority of legislative republicans to support this legislation as well. Enough is enough, it is long past time to act.”
