Scott Soik Announces Candidacy for 71st State Assembly District

Stevens Point, WI—Small-business owner and local government official, Scott Soik announced that he would be seeking the support of his Portage County neighbors for election to the 71st State Assembly District seat.

“I have devoted my adult life to the service of others, from my enlistment in the United States Marine Corps to my local government roles. The TIME IS NOW for me to bring my small-business experience to Madison to serve in the State Assembly,” Scott Soik announced.

“With the horrible impact the COVID-19 shutdown is having on Wisconsin’s economy, my background in the private sector and in small-business will make me the right choice to ensure that Portage County will be in the best position to recover quickly from the economic damage the virus has caused for our friends and neighbors in Central Wisconsin.

“My wife and I, both being entrepreneurs, gives me perspective in the COVID-19 crisis that will help make economically wise policy choices that will get Wisconsin’s recovery off on the right foot,” Soik said.

Scott Soik grew up just outside Stevens Point where he lives in the Town of Linwood with his wife Bridget and sons Parker, Warren and Mason. He served the United States Marine Corps from 1993-1997 and owns River Valley Specialized Machining. Scott served as Town of Linwood Board Supervisor from 2004-2006, Town of Linwood plan Commission 2004-2012, Town of Linwood Plan Commission Chairman 2017-2020, Portage County Board of Adjustment 2011-2017, St. Paul Lutheran School Board 2011-2017. Scott currently serves on the Portage County Board of Supervisors. The 71st State Assembly district includes Stevens Point and Eastern Portage County.
