Sorenson is deeply grateful to have the support of the citizens who voted to support his candidacy for Mayor of city of Sheboygan.

This has truly been a grassroots campaign of citizens getting together to move Sheboygan from good to great. Just a few months ago, more than 400 Sheboyganites signed his nomination papers endorsing his vision for the future and putting his name on the ballot. Thanks to the overwhelming support of citizens, Ryan Sorenson won the primary election on February 16th with more than 48% of the vote.

Since January over 450 yard signs have been placed in front of homes and businesses all over the city of Sheboygan. Additionally Sorenson and his volunteer team have knocked on over 10,000 doors to talk with citizens about their concerns for the community and their vision for the future. In every neighborhood across the city, people have shared that this past year has been incredibly difficult and they want their local government to focus on real solutions.

The road to a Stronger Sheboygan depends on a leader who can effectively involve the talents of all of our community members to creatively develop new solutions to our pressing problems. Ryan Sorenson is looking forward to bringing his energy, passion and experience to unite our community on creating hometown solutions for hometown challenges.

"I am looking forward to working together with all of our residents of the city of Sheboygan to focus on how we can make Sheboygan even better – a community that works for everyone and where all can thrive," stated Sorenson.
